Thru-wall air conditioners were developed in the late 1950's. Over the next forty years many companies engineered, manufactured and installed a variety of different units throughout the United States and Canada. Today, a number of these companies are no longer in business or have discontinued their line of thru-wall air conditioners and no longer carry replacement parts.

Islandaire Inc. offers replacement air conditioners and heat pumps that are interchangeable with units no longer available from the original manufacturer.

Our units are engineered to fit perfectly within the existing wall sleeve, thereby reducing installation time and expense.

We can easily replace the following P.T.A.C. units with exact-fit replacements:

- Amana
- American Air Filter
- American Standard
